Did You Know? Adoption: Celebrating the Truth Behind the Myths

Adoption is a beautiful and sacrificial option that many agencies work tirelessly to become immersed in for both the love and wellbeing of mother and baby. Life Care Pregnancy Center is honored to be able to work with such Christian adoption agencies that help moms place their children for adoption in a way that is honoring of both lives.

Sadly, many women reject the option of adoption. According to a study conducted by Vitae Foundation, it concludes that women perceive abortion as the least of three evils (abortion, adoption, and parenting), with adoption oftentimes viewed as the greatest "evil." The perceived death or loss of self is what is referred to as "evil." Abortion represents the loss of the child, parenting as a loss of self, and adoption as encompassing elements of both.

That is why it is important to empower the mother to recognize that, not only does abortion lead to the eventual loss of self, but that adoption offers the best option for true choice. Dispelling the common myths many women believe behind adoption is a key role here at Life Care.

Myth: Adoption is “giving up”

Truth: Adoption is not giving up—it’s a thoughtful, loving decision made with a child’s future in mind.

Myth: My baby will end up in foster care

Truth: Adoption is a voluntary plan. The mother can choose the family, creating a stable, permanent home—unlike foster care, which is often temporary and not chosen by the parent. Open adoption allows the mother to choose the family and decide her level of connection—through updates, visits, or ongoing communication, if desired.

Myth: Adoption is too hard

Truth: Birth moms are not alone. They are in control of their plan. And support, such as counseling and birth mom resources and retreats, are available every step of the way.
